Introduction

The current Standard Eurobarometer was carried out between September 6th and October 10th 2006. This wave of the Standard Eurobarometer, Eurobarometer 66, reflects the public opinion of Europeans just prior to the accession of Bulgaria and Romania.

This Autumn Standard Eurobarometer covers 30 countries or territories: the 25 Member States, the two acceding countries (Bulgaria and Romania), the two candidate countries (Croatia and Turkey) and the Turkish Cypriot Community. It was commissioned by the Directorate-General Communication of the European Commission and was carried out by TNS Opinion & Social, a consortium formed by TNS and EOS Gallup Europe.

The methodology used is that of the Standard Eurobarometer surveys of the Directorate-General Communication ("Public Opinion and Media Monitoring" Unit). A technical note concerning the interviews, carried out by the institutes within the TNS Opinion & Social network, is annexed to this report. This note specifies the interview method used, as well as the confidence intervals<sup>1</sup>.

In this report, readers will find the first results of the survey. The first chapter presents main indicators of support for the European Union, while the second chapter focuses on values and current societal issues.

The reader should know that there are three kinds of reports for the Eurobarometer. The first results focus on trend indicators and a selection of new topics aiming at giving a quick and operational overview of European public opinion on major issues. The full report analyses in depth all the questions asked in a Standard Eurobarometer wave. National reports are published by the national representations of the European Commission and written in the national language(s). They focus more on the comparison between national results and the EU average. Executive summaries of these national reports also exist and are published in English on europa website.

We would like to take the opportunity to thank all the respondents who spend some of their time to take part in this survey.

<sup>1</sup> The results tables are included in the annex. The totals indicated may show a one point difference with the sum of the individual units. This might be due to the rounding of some results. It should also be noted that the total of the percentages in the tables of this report may exceed 100% when the respondent has the possibility to give several answers to the same question.

* Cyprus as a whole is one of the 25 European Union Member States. However, the "acquis communautaire" is suspended in the part of the country that is not controlled by the government of the Republic of Cyprus. For practical reasons, only the interviews conducted in the part of the country controlled by the government of the Republic of Cyprus are recorded in the category "CY" and included in the EU25 average. The interviews conducted in the part of the country not controlled by the government of the Republic of Cyprus are recorded in the category "CY(tcc)" [tcc: Turkish Cypriot Community].

PART I: TREND INDICATORS

The first part of this report focuses on the main trend indicators included in this new wave of the Standard Eurobarometer.

1. SUPPORT FOR MEMBERSHIP OF THE EUROPEAN UNION

“Support for membership of the European Union has fallen slightly”

Support for European Union membership is slightly lower than it was in Spring 2006. On average, 53% of European Union citizens now believe that their country's membership of the European Union is a good thing (-2 points), while 16% of respondents think that it is a bad thing (+3 points)<sup>2</sup>.

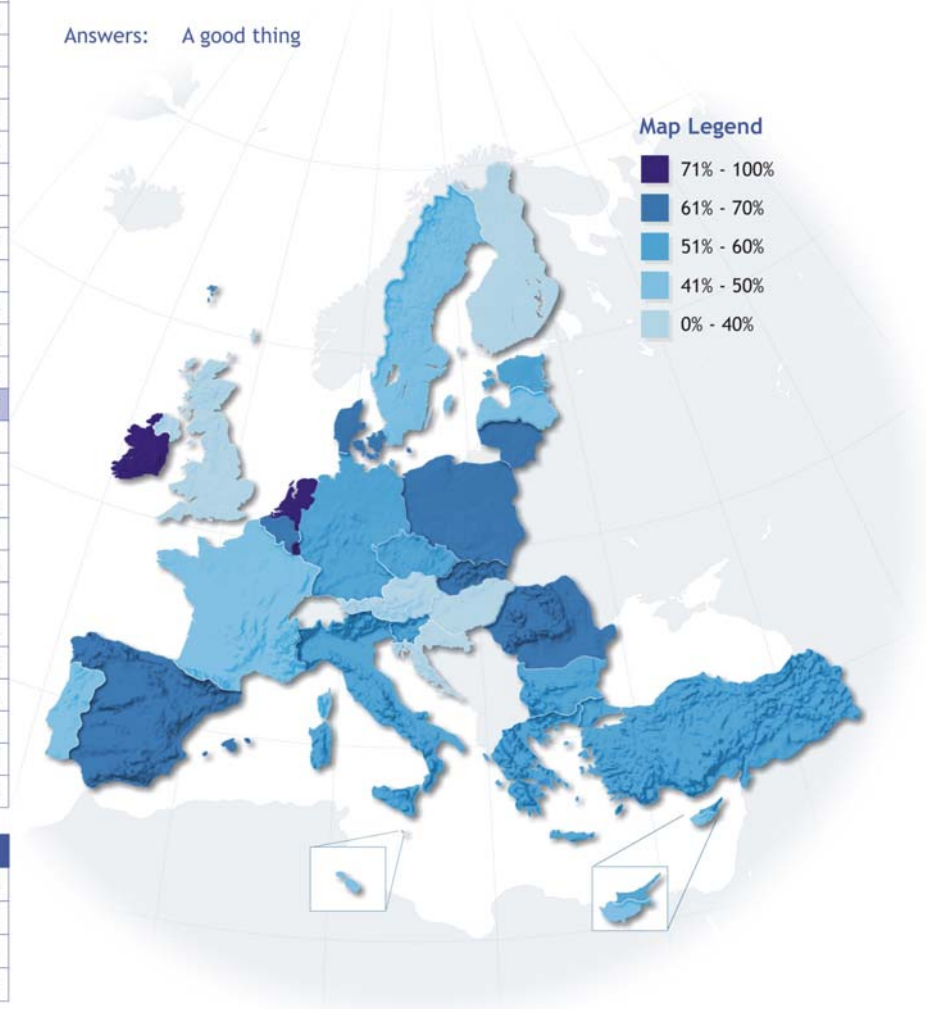

Support for European Union membership remains strongest in Ireland, where almost 8 out of 10 people see it as a good thing (78%; +1 point). Luxembourg (74%; +2 points), the Netherlands (72%; -2 points) and Belgium (69%; +4 points) are the three other Member States where more than two-thirds of people share this view. At the other end of the scale, support for European Union membership is lowest in the United Kingdom (34%; -8 points), Austria (36%; +2 points), Finland (39%; no change) and Hungary (39%; -10 points).

Question: QA7. Generally speaking, do you think that (OUR COUNTRY)'s membership of the European Union is/would be...?

Answers: A good thing

There are significant socio-demographic differences on this dimension, particularly in terms of the education, occupation and age of respondents. 67% of respondents who studied beyond the age of 20 consider that it is a good thing compared with 41% of those who left school the earliest (i.e. a difference as high as 26 percentage points). 68% of managers approve of membership compared with 45% of those who look after the home. 60% of respondents aged 15-24 believe that it is a good thing to be part of the EU compared with 48% of those aged 55 and over.

 1-3	42%	18%	33%	7%
4-7	61%	14%	24%	1%

In terms of subjective EU knowledge<sup>3</sup>, there is a 25 points difference between respondents who consider that they know a great deal about the European Union and those who feel that they know very little (67% versus 42%).

<sup>3</sup> For many years, the Eurobarometer has asked European Union citizens to assess their level of knowledge about the European Union, its policies and its institutions. Respondents are asked to rate their level of knowledge on a scale of 1 (know nothing at all) to 10 (know a great deal) representing their level of knowledge. For ease of reference, the scores have been grouped together. Here is the exact wording of the question: "QA14. Using this scale, how much do you feel you know about the European Union, its policies, its institutions?"

2. THE BENEFITS OF MEMBERSHIP OF THE EUROPEAN UNION

"A majority still believe that their country has benefited from EU membership"

As in Spring 2006, 54% of citizens on average believe that their country has benefited from EU membership. Around one third of the EU citizens continue to feel that their country has not benefited (34%; +1 point)<sup>4</sup>. The gap between positive and negative responses is now 20 points, compared with 21 points in Spring 2006.

Public opinion continues to be the most positive in Ireland, where almost 9 out of 10 respondents consider that on balance their country has benefited from membership of the European Union (87%; no change). Lithuania comes in second place (77%; +5 points), followed by Denmark (74%; -1 point) and Greece (74%; +2 points). Support for this view is the lowest in the United Kingdom (39%; -3 points), Sweden (41%; -2 points) and Hungary (41%; -11 points).

<sup>4</sup> QA8a. Taking everything into consideration, would you say that (OUR COUNTRY) has on balance benefited or not from being a member of the European Union?

There are also significant differences in socio-demographic terms on this aspect. The higher their level of education, the more respondents believe that their country has benefited from EU membership (69% of students think that their country has benefited from membership compared with 41% of those who left school the earliest).

At the same time, white-collar employees are once again more inclined to recognize the benefits of EU membership (67% of managers feel that their country has benefited from membership versus 45% of unemployed people).

Benefit of membership

House Persons	46%	35%	20%
Unemployed	45%	43%	12%
Retired	46%	40%	14%
Students	69%	18%	12%

Benefit of membership has also a stronger support among younger respondents (65% of respondents aged 15-24 feel that their country has benefited from membership versus 46% of those aged 55 and over.)

3. THE EUROPEAN UNION'S IMAGE

On average, the number of EU citizens who view the European Union positively is slightly less than in Spring 2006 (46%; -4 points). The European Union's image is now neutral for around one third of citizens (34%; +2 points) while one sixth of citizens perceive it negatively (17%; +2 points)<sup>5</sup>.

The European Union's image continues to be the most widely perceived as positive in Ireland (73%; no change). Furthermore, in nearly all Member States, citizens who view the European Union's image positively outnumber those who view it negatively. However, that is not the case in the United Kingdom where 36% of the public perceive the EU negatively; 28% of citizens in the UK see it positively. In Austria and Sweden, citizens having a positive image of the European Union only just outnumber those who have a negative perception (by 6 and 7 percentage points, respectively).

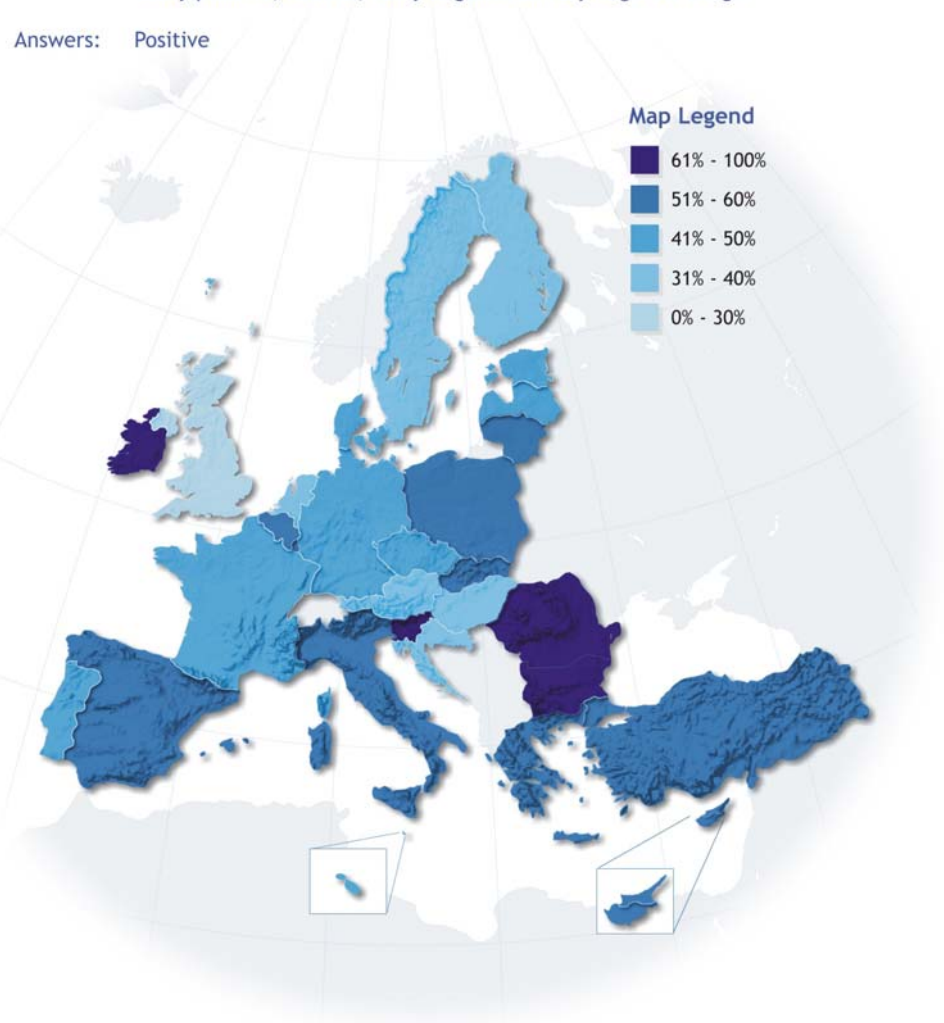

In the two acceding countries, nearly two thirds of respondents believe that the European Union's image is positive. In Bulgaria, the public perception of the European Union's image has improved significantly since Spring 2006 (63%; +4 points) while it is more or less unchanged in Romania (65%; +1 point). The European Union's image is mostly positive in Turkey (55%; +12 points), whereas public opinion in Croatia is clearly divided, with positive and negative scores of 32% and 29% respectively.

<sup>5</sup> QA10. In general, does the European Union conjure up for you a very positive, fairly positive, neutral, fairly negative or very negative image?

Question: Qa10. In general, does the European Union conjure up for you a very positive, fairly positive, neutral, fairly negative or very negative image?

Answers: Positive

On this dimension too, a socio-demographic analysis reveals significant differences, in line with those highlighted earlier. The image that respondents have of the EU is correlated with their level of education, occupation and age.

4. TRUST IN THE EUROPEAN COMMISSION

"Trust in the European Commission remains stable"

Concerning more specifically the image of certain European institutions, the level of trust in the European Commission has not changed significantly since Spring 2006, at EU level. On average, almost half of EU citizens now trust this institution (48%; +1 point), whereas under a third do not trust it (31%; +2 points)<sup>6</sup>. It should be noted that the proportion of citizens tending not to trust the European Commission remains higher than was the case between Autumn 1999 and Autumn 2004.

However, at country level, there have been significant shifts in the level of trust since Spring 2006. Trust in the European Commission continues to be the most widespread in Slovenia (73%; +8 points). The next highest levels are to be found in Belgium (68%; +5 points), Greece (68%; +7 points) and Slovakia (66%; +10 points). The United Kingdom continues to be the country where trust in the European Commission is the lowest (25%; -3 points); it is the only Member State where less than 4 out of 10 citizens trust the Commission.

In the two acceding countries, trust in the European Commission has improved significantly since Spring 2006: 62% of Romanians now trust the Commission (+8 points), while the corresponding percentage in Bulgaria is 51% (+7 points). The level of trust has also improved slightly in the two candidate countries and now stands at 43% in Croatia (+4 points) and 32% in Turkey (+3 points).

Question: QA19_2. And, for each of them, please tell me if you tend to trust it or tend not to trust it?

Option: The European Commission

Answers: Tend to trust

In socio-demographic terms, the three most significant differences among respondents tending to trust the European Commission concern the following variables: education (58% of who studied beyond the age of 20 trust the Commission compared with 37% of those who left school the earliest), occupation and place of birth (57% of respondents born in an EU country other than the country where they now live tend to trust the Commission versus 42% of those born in a European country outside the EU). Levels of “don’t know/no answer” explain partly this last difference (28% for people who are born in a European country but outside the EU).

5. TRUST IN THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT

"The European Parliament continues to be the most trusted institution"

Trust in the European Parliament remains stable with on average 52% of EU citizens trusting this institution. At the same time, the level of lack of trust at 32% confirms the negative trend observed since Autumn 2004<sup>7</sup>.

Trust in the European Parliament is now most widespread in Slovenia (73%; +8 points), followed closely by Slovakia (71%; +9 points) and Greece (70%; +7 points). In Belgium, (67%; +2 points), Ireland (66%; +4 points) and Hungary (65%; -6 points), around two thirds of citizens trust the European Parliament although the level of trust in Hungary is now significantly lower than in Spring 2006. Trust is the lowest in the United Kingdom and has fallen further since Spring 2006 (25%; -6 points). As was the case regarding trust in the European Commission, the United Kingdom is the only Member State where fewer than 4 out of 10 citizens trust the European Parliament.

In the two acceding countries, trust in the European Parliament has improved almost as much as trust in the European Commission: 64% of Romanians (+5 points) and 55% of Bulgarians (+4 points) now trust it. The level of trust has also improved slightly in Croatia (46%; +3 points), but has remained stable in Turkey (34%).

Question: QA19_1. And, for each of them, please tell me if you tend to trust it or tend not to trust it?

Option: The European Parliament

Answers: Tend to trust

Once again, a socio-demographic analysis reveals clear differences, which are similar to those noted for the European Commission. The respondent's education, place of birth, occupation and subjective level of knowledge about the EU remain the most discriminating variables.

6. THE DIRECTION IN WHICH THINGS ARE GOING

Overall the number of people who feel that things are going in the right direction in the European Union is still higher than those who take this view about their own country (33% vs. 28%). However, the mood is now less positive than it was at the beginning of 2006<sup>8</sup>.

The proportion of citizens who feel that things are going in the right direction in the European Union has fallen by 6 points. An equal proportion of citizens now feel that things are going in the wrong direction in the European Union (33%; +6 points). However, the difference regarding the negative side of the answers between the national and the European situation remains important. In other words, the EU perspective produces less pessimism amongst EU citizens than the national one: almost one in two respondents believes that things are going in the wrong direction in their respective country, while one third of them share the same view when it comes to the EU level.

Question: Qa5. At the present time, would you say that, in general, things are going in the right direction or in the wrong direction, in...?

Option: (OUR COUNTRY)

The European Union

The most positive results regarding the national orientation are to be found in Ireland (56%), Estonia (53%) and in Scandinavian countries. Pessimism is strongest in France and Hungary (where 61% of the respondents in these two countries consider that things are going in the wrong direction), Poland (60%), the UK (57%) and, although to a lesser extent, in Germany (50%).

Regarding the EU perspective, there is a difference of 23 points between the results obtained in the former EU15 countries (29%; -7 points) and the ten new Member States (52%; -1 point). The view that things are going in the right direction in the European Union is most widely supported in Lithuania (57%; -3 points), Slovenia (56%; no change) and Poland (55%; -3 points). Citizens in France (22%; -7 points), the United Kingdom (24%; -10 points), Germany (28%; -10 points) Luxembourg (29%; -8 points) and Italy (29%; -4 points) are the most pessimistic, even more so than at the beginning of 2006.

Views on the direction in which things are going in the European Union are mainly influenced by the age and education of respondents. 47% of respondents who are still studying believe that things are going in the right direction compared with 25% of those who left school the earliest, while 43% of the youngest age category tend to be optimistic compared with only 27% of those aged 55 and over.

The direction in which things are going in the EU

	Things are going in the right direction	Things are going in the wrong direction	Neither the one nor the other (SPONT.)	DK/NA

4-7	38%	33%	21%	8%
8-10	45%	36%	16%	3%

Subjective EU knowledge is another important determinant for this dimension: when looking at the results for “things are going in the right direction”, there is a difference of 20 points between respondents who feel that they know a great deal about the European Union and those who feel that they know very little (45% versus 25%).

7. SUPPORT FOR A COMMON FOREIGN POLICY

"Still broad support for a common foreign policy"

In general support for a common foreign policy continues to be stable with more than two out of three European citizens supporting this idea (68%; +1 point)<sup>9</sup>. The proportion of citizens who oppose a common foreign policy is unchanged at 21%.

Question: QA25_2. What is your opinion on each of the following statements? Please tell me for each statement, whether you are for it or against it.

Option: A common foreign policy among the Member States of the EU, towards other countries

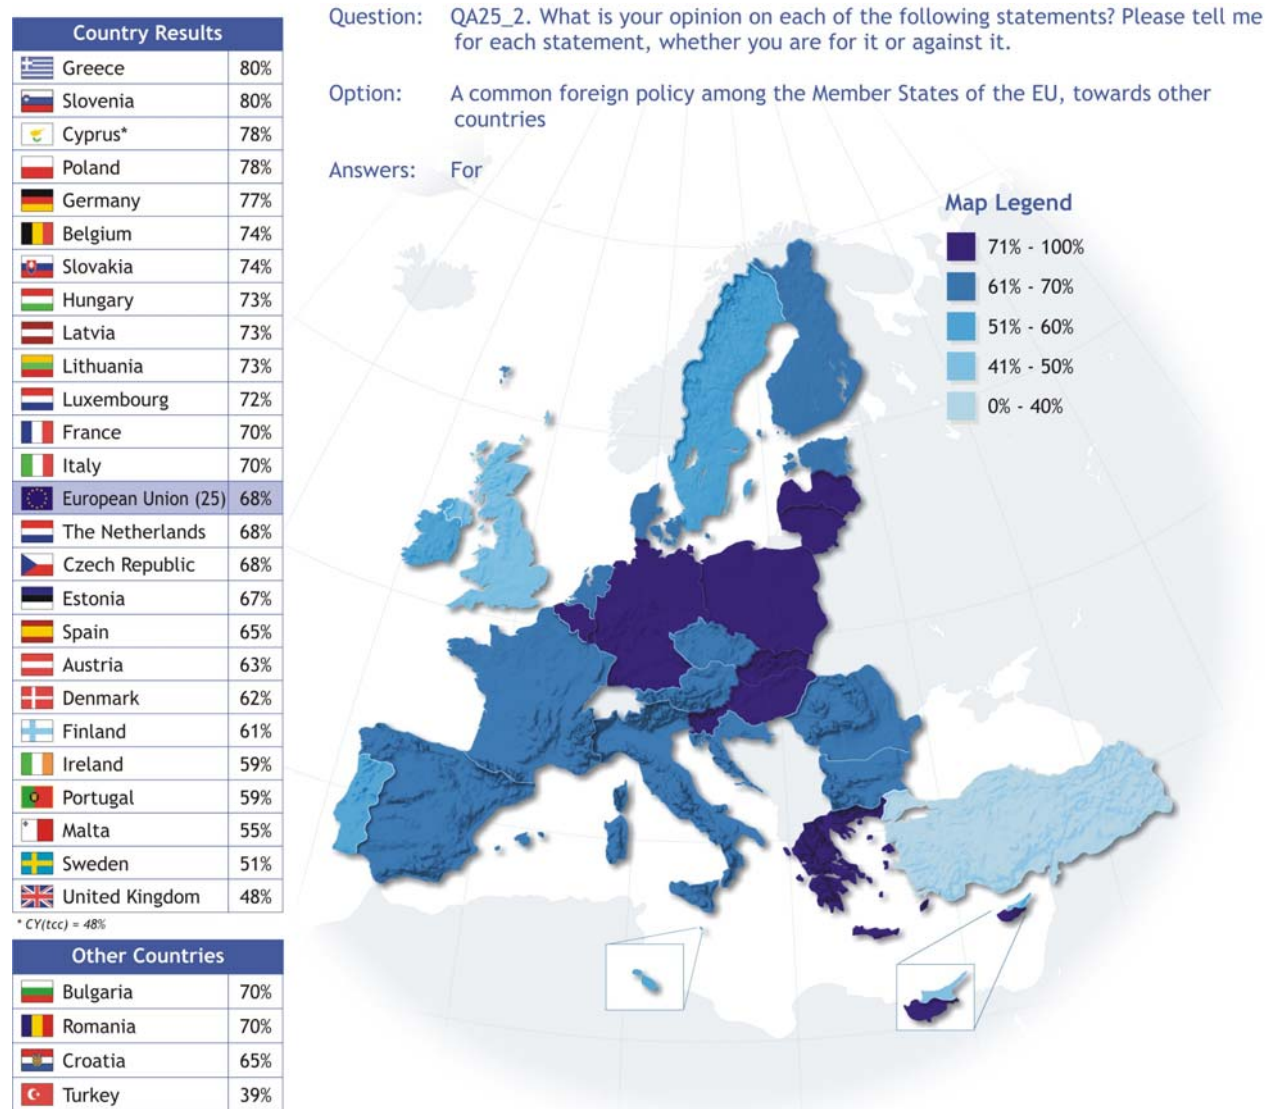

There is a difference of 9 points between the level of support in the former EU15 countries and that in the ten new Member States (66% and 75% respectively). Furthermore, there are large variations at country level. In the Member States, support for a common foreign policy is highest in Slovenia (80%; +4 points) and Greece (80%; +3 points), and lowest in the United Kingdom (48%; -2 points) and Sweden (50%; +1 point).

In the two acceding countries, the level of support has increased by 3 percentage points and now stands at 70% in both Bulgaria and Romania. In the candidate countries, public opinion continues to be significantly more critical in Turkey (39%; -2 points) than in Croatia (65%; -1 point).

<sup>9</sup> QA25.2. What is your opinion on each of the following statements? Please tell me for each statement, whether you are for it or against it.

One common foreign policy among the Member States of the European Union, towards other countries

Support levels for a common foreign policy vary chiefly according to the respondent's occupation and education. 76% of managers support a common foreign policy compared with 59% of those who look after the home. It is also noteworthy that 76% of respondents who studied beyond the age of 20 are in favour of a common foreign policy versus 60% of those who left school the earliest.

8. SUPPORT FOR A COMMON SECURITY & DEFENCE POLICY

“Support for the ESDP remains widespread”

European public opinion also remains very positive on issues relating to the European Security and Defence Policy (ESDP). On average, 3 out of 4 European Union citizens are in favour of a common security and defence policy, i.e. the same level as in Spring 2006<sup>10</sup>.

Question: QA25_3. What is your opinion on each of the following statements? Please tell me for each statement, whether you are for it or against it.

Option: A common defence and security policy among EU Member States

As in Spring 2006, support tends to be even stronger in the ten new Member States: there is a difference of 11 points between the average in the former EU15 countries and that in the ten new Member States (73% and 84% respectively). However, support varies considerably from one country to another; it is the highest in Cyprus (89%; +2 points) and Belgium (88%; +3 points), and the lowest in Ireland (52%; -7 points), Sweden (56%; -3 points) and the United Kingdom (57%; no change).

In the two acceding countries, support now stands at 76% in both countries, up from 70% in Bulgaria and 75% in Romania. In the candidate countries, although support has increased in Turkey (50%; +7 points), it has decreased in Croatia 71%; -4 points).

Question: QA25_3. What is your opinion on each of the following statements? Please tell me for each statement, whether you are for it or against it.

Option: A common defence and security policy among EU Member States

Answers: For

For this dimension, public opinion is fairly homogeneous in socio-demographic terms. However there are significant differences depending on the respondent's education and age. For example, 83% of respondents who studied beyond the age of 20 are in favour of the ESDP compared with 67% of those who left school the earliest, while 83% of managers support the ESDP compared with 68% of those who look after the home.

9. SUPPORT FOR ENLARGEMENT

"Public opinion remains divided about further enlargement"

On the eve of the 5th round of enlargement, the gap between supporters and opponents of further enlargement remains small. On average, 46% of EU citizens support further enlargement (+1 point since Spring 2006) while 42% continue to oppose it<sup>11</sup>.

Question: QA25_4. What is your opinion on each of the following statements? Please tell me for each statement, whether you are for it or against it.

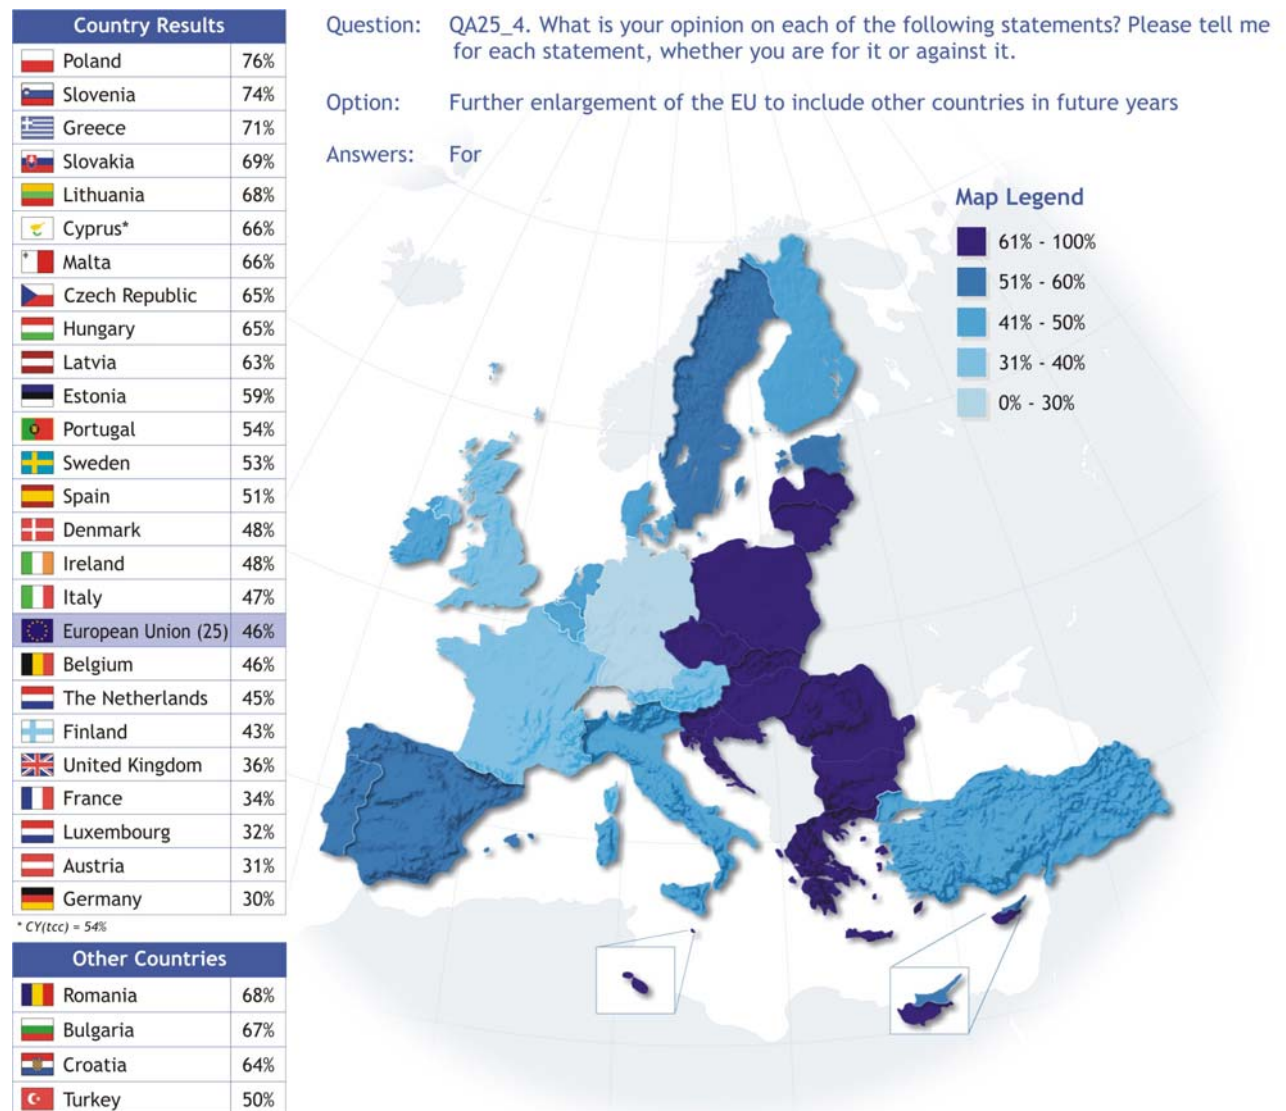

Option: Further enlargement of the EU to include other countries in future years

However, the European average conceals very large differences and shifts in opinion. Support for further enlargement tends to be considerably higher in the ten new Member States than in the former EU15 countries (72% versus 41%). Furthermore, public opinion has shifted considerably within some of the Member States and support is now the strongest in Poland (76%; +4 points), followed by Slovenia (74%; +1 point). Next come Greece (71%; +15 points) and Slovakia (69%; +11 points), which have recorded the largest increases in support. There are only two Member States where support has fallen significantly: the United Kingdom (36%; -8 points) and Spain (51%; -4 points). However, support continues to be the lowest in Germany (30%; +2 points); Austria (31%; +4 points), Luxembourg (32%; +5 points) and France (34%; +3 points), despite the increases noted in those countries.

<sup>11</sup> QA25.4. What is your opinion on each of the following statements? Please tell me for each statement, whether you are for it or against it.
Further enlargement of the European Union to include other countries in future years.

Almost 7 in 10 respondents in the two countries that are about to join the European Union, namely Romania and Bulgaria, are in favour of further enlargement. In Romania, this represents a slight fall since Spring 2006 (68%; -1 point), whereas support has increased in Bulgaria (67%; +5 points). In Croatia support is stable at 64%, while it has increased by 5 points to 50% in Turkey.

The position of respondents on further enlargement is also strongly influenced by their age and education: 59% of respondents who are still studying claim to be in favour of further enlargement compared with 35% of those who left school at 15 or earlier. Support for further enlargement of the EU tends to be stronger among younger respondents (58% of respondents aged 15-24 compared with 38% of those aged 55 and over).

Support for Enlargement

EU average	46%	42%	12%
 Age
15-24	58%	32%	10%

 EU knowledge
1-3	39%	44%	17%
4-7	52%	40%	8%
8-10	51%	43%	7%

Unlike most other Eurobarometer indicators, there is no real discernible pattern in terms of EU knowledge: people who feel that they know a little about the EU are the most inclined to support enlargement (52%), compared with those who feel that they know a great deal (51%) and those who feel that they know very little (39%) about it.

10. THE EUROPEAN CONSTITUTION

Over half of the people living in the countries which at the time of the survey had not yet ratified the treaty establishing the European Constitution support the constitution (53%)<sup>12</sup> which represents an improvement (+ 6 points) compared with Spring 2006. Public opinion is now also less volatile as the proportion of "don't know" replies has fallen from 24% to 19%.

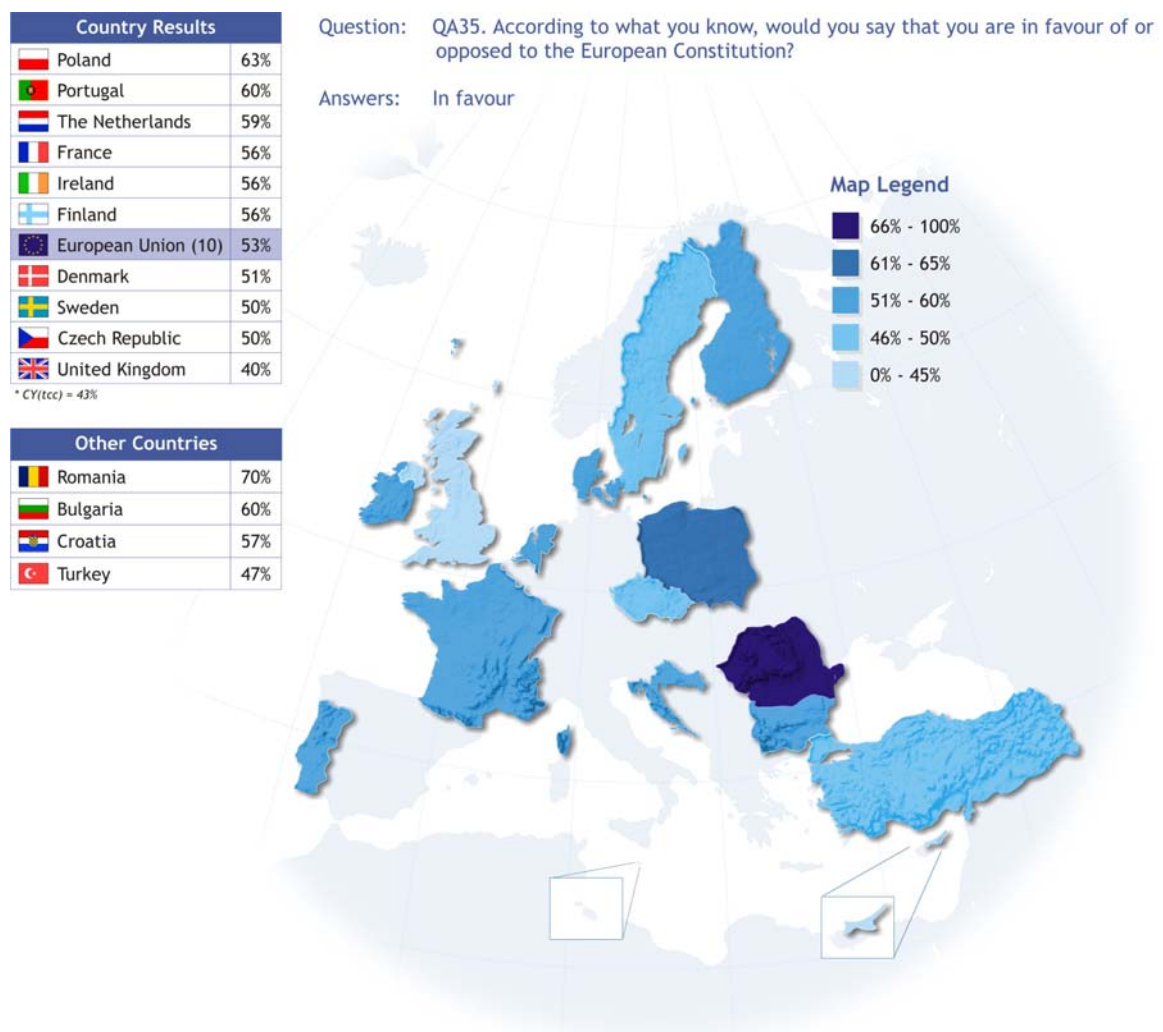

Question: QA35. According to what you know, would you say that you are in favour of or opposed to the European Constitution?

In all the Member States in question a majority of citizens are in favour of the European Constitution, with the highest level of support being in Poland (63%).

<sup>12</sup> The following question has only been asked in countries where the European Constitution has not been yet adopted or in those that have already rejected it (i.e. France and the Netherlands).
"QA35 According to what you know, would you say that you are in favour of or opposed to the European Constitution?"

However, in the United Kingdom, the gap between those in favour and those against the Constitution is small (40% vs. 35%). Furthermore, it should be noted that a significant minority of the population in Denmark (35%), Finland (32%), France, the Netherlands (both 31%) and the Czech Republic (30%) is against it. In France and the Netherlands – the two countries that rejected the Constitution by referendum – public support has increased since Spring 2006: 59% of Dutch respondents are now in favour (+6 points) and for France this figure is 56% (+5 points). Public opinion in Ireland remains quite volatile with 35% of the respondents unable to express an opinion.

In the two countries that will be joining the European Union on 1 January 2007 there is broad support for the European Constitution: 70% in Romania and 60% in Bulgaria. Although the percentage of “don’t know” replies remains high in Bulgaria (33%) the level of opposition levels is negligible (7%).

PART II: NEWS TOPICS

The second part of this report presents a set of new indicators measuring the positioning of EU citizens on some key societal issues. These indicators were asked to understand the opinion of EU citizens on issues that are debated in certain Member States.

1. Values

1.1 PERSONAL AND EUROPEAN VALUES

“Peace and human rights: two European values that citizens cherish above all”

Peace (52%), respect for human life (43%) and human rights (41%) are the most important personal values of Europeans<sup>13</sup>. When asked about the values that best represent the European Union<sup>14</sup>, respondents position human rights and peace in the top three as well. The respect for human life appears to be less embodied by the EU while the importance of democracy and the rule of law seems more evident at the EU level than at a personal one.

<sup>14</sup> QA48b Which three of the following values, best represent the European Union? (MAX. 3 ANSWERS)

In twenty of the twenty-five current Member States, peace is the number one personal value and in the other five countries it comes in either second or third place. Respondents in Germany (65%), Slovakia (63%) and Sweden (61%) mentioned most frequently peace as one of their three most important personal values. The lowest percentages were recorded in Lithuania (38%), followed by the Netherlands and the United Kingdom (both 42%).

Respect for human life was the most frequently mentioned personal value in Ireland (56%), the United Kingdom (50%) and the Netherlands (46%) and ranks as one of the top three values in nearly all other Member States. The exceptions are Sweden and Denmark where democracy makes the top three, as well as Austria where individual freedom makes the top three. In these three countries, respect for human life was the fourth most frequently mentioned personal value.

In all Member States, human rights is also one of the top three personal values, coming in first place in Cyprus (53%) and Lithuania (50%); the lowest scores were recorded in the United Kingdom (32%) and Ireland (34%).

In Bulgaria and Romania, the three most important personal values are the same as in the European Union. It should be noted however that in Bulgaria, respect for human life was mentioned most frequently by respondents (50%), whereas in Romania, the issue of human rights tops the list (47%). Peace comes in second place in Romania (43%) and in third place in Bulgaria (46%).

1.2 STATE INTERVENTIONISM AND FREE COMPETITION

Over 6 out of 10 respondents agree that free competition is the best guarantee of economic prosperity (64%) and that the state intervenes too much in their lives (62%)<sup>15</sup>. Although people to the right of the political spectrum are even more likely to agree, those to the left of the political spectrum also broadly support a non-interventionist, free-market approach. 73% and 67% respectively of people on the right of the political spectrum agree that free competition is the best guarantee of economic prosperity and that the state intervenes too much in their lives. For those on the left of the political spectrum the corresponding figures are 61% and 59%, respectively.

2. Societal issues

In this chapter, we examine European public opinion on various societal issues such as justice, religion, homosexuality, immigration and drugs<sup>16</sup>.

For each of the following propositions, tell me if you... ?

2.1 SEVERITY OF JUSTICE

“Justice is considered as too tolerant nowadays”

European Union citizens are unequivocally united in their view that criminals need to be punished more severely as there is too much tolerance nowadays (85%). We do not find any national discrepancy on this issue.

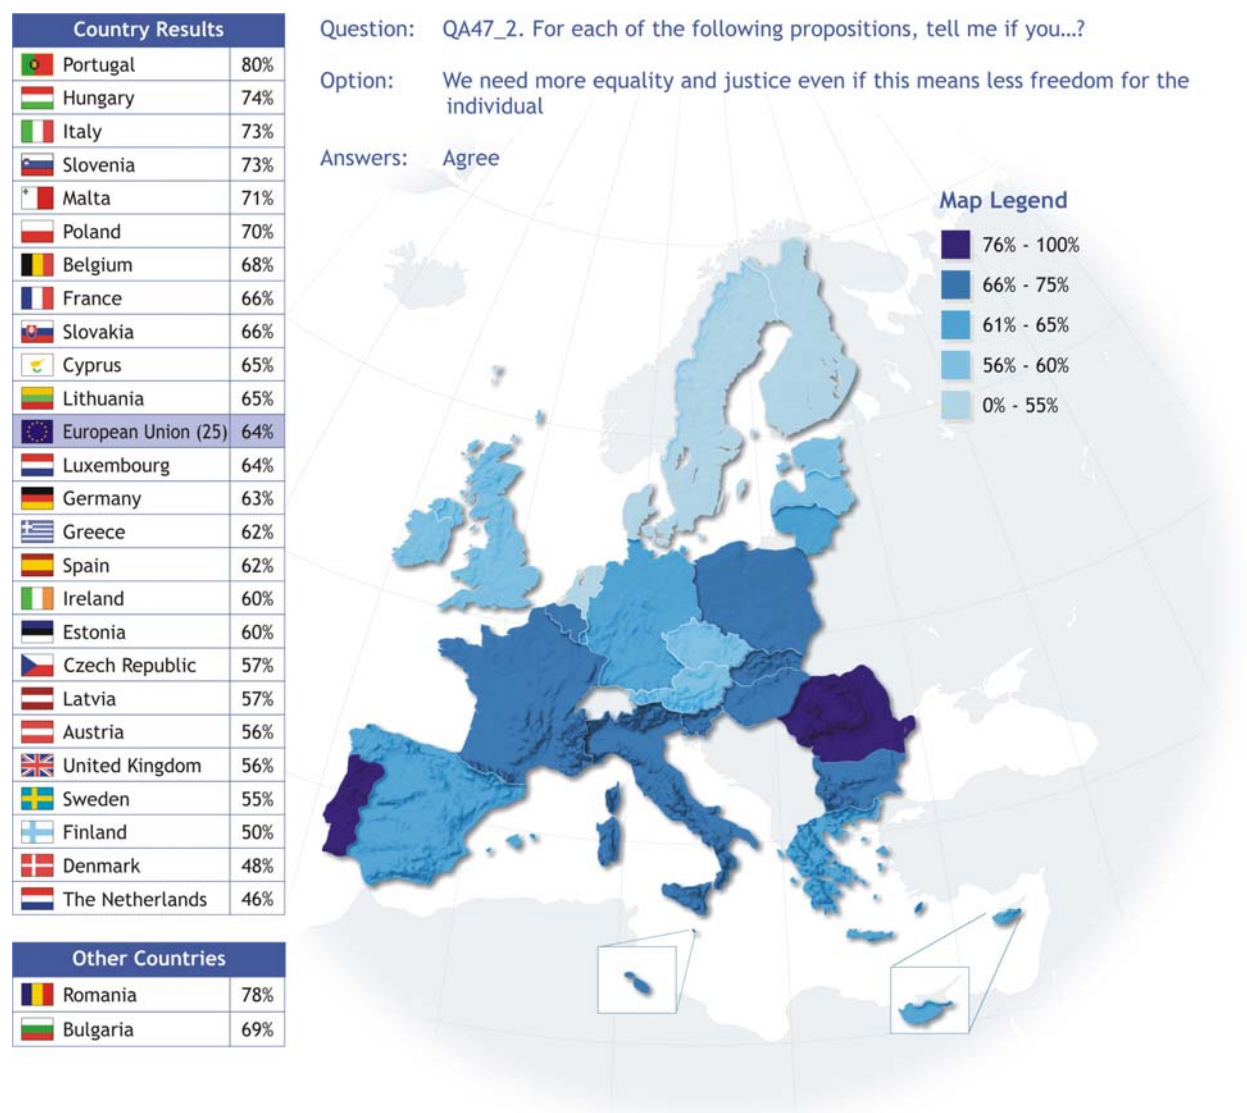

This view is not only held by the majority of people who place themselves on the right of the political spectrum (90%), but also by a significant proportion of those who place themselves on the left of this spectrum (78%)<sup>17</sup>.

2.2 EQUALITY VS INDIVIDUAL FREEDOM

“A call for more equality and justice, even if this means less individual freedom”

Furthermore, citizens want more equality and justice, even if this means less freedom for the individual. Nearly two out of three EU citizens agree with this statement (64%). However, the survey reveals considerable differences between the Member States, with levels of agreement ranging from 46% in the Netherlands to 80% in Portugal.

2.3 THE PLACE OF RELIGION IN SOCIETY

“Public opinion is divided about the place of religion in society”

Europeans are divided about the place of religion in society. On average, 46% of respondents agree with the proposal that it is too important while 48% disagree. A socio-demographic analysis reveals slight differences on the basis of age, education and political views. The main cleavage is, however, at country level, as the survey highlights a strong degree of heterogeneity among the Member States in this regard. Support for the proposal that the place of religion in our society is too important ranges from 20% in Estonia to 81% in Cyprus.

2.4 ATTITUDES TOWARDS HOMOSEXUALITY

The survey also shows that openness towards homosexuality tends to be quite limited. On average, only 32% of Europeans feel that homosexual couples should be allowed to adopt children throughout Europe. In fact, in 14 of the 25 Member States less than a quarter of the public accepts adoption by homosexual couples. Public opinion tends to be somewhat more tolerant as regards homosexual marriages: 44% of EU citizens agree that such marriages should be allowed throughout Europe. It should be noted that some Member States distinguish themselves from the average result by very high acceptance levels: the Netherlands tops the list with 82% of respondents in favour of homosexual marriages and 69% supporting the idea of adoption by homosexual couples. Opposition is strongest in Greece, Latvia (both 84% and 89%, respectively) and Poland (76% and 89%).

One has to remember that homosexual marriages (or similar union between to persons of the same gender) are allowed in the Netherlands, Belgium, Spain, Sweden and in the UK.

Answers: Agree

2.5 THE CONTRIBUTION OF IMMIGRANTS TO SOCIETY

"Balanced views on the extent to which immigrants contribute to their country"

On average, 4 out of 10 EU citizens feel that immigrants contribute a lot to their country. However, the majority of citizens do not agree with this statement (52%).

People who place themselves on the left of the political spectrum are more inclined to agree with the proposal than right wing supporters (50% versus 36% respectively agree with the proposal). Furthermore, the longer people studied, the more positive they tend to be on this question (54% of people who stayed in full-time education until the age of 20 or older feel that immigrants contribute a lot to their country compared with 33% of people who left full-time education before the age of 16).

However, the most significant differences in opinion are found at country level: in Sweden around 8 out of 10 people agree that immigrants contribute a lot to their country (79%) compared with only 12% in Slovakia. These figures have to be balanced by the number of immigrants in each of the countries surveyed.

2.6 LEGALISATION OF CANNABIS

"Clear opposition to the legalisation of cannabis throughout Europe"

The high level of opposition to the idea that personal consumption of cannabis should be legalised throughout Europe provides further evidence that Europeans feel that there is too much tolerance nowadays. Only around a quarter of European Union citizens agree with this statement (26%), while two thirds disagree with it (68%). Moreover, even young Europeans tend to be opposed to the legalisation of cannabis (57% of respondents aged 15 to 24 disagreed with the statement). However, it must be noted that opinions vary from country to country. In Finland (8%) and Sweden (9%) the idea is rejected outright, whereas in the Netherlands, where the personal Consumption of cannabis is legal, just under half of the respondents feel that cannabis should be legalised throughout Europe (49%).

2.7 THE IMPORTANCE OF SPARE TIME

"Leisure time is also important!"

To finish this chapter on a slightly lighter note, the survey shows that 48% of EU citizens agree that more importance should be given to spare time than to work. Citizens opting for more spare time just narrowly outnumber those who disagree with this statement (45%).

EUROBAROMETER « STANDARD » 66

Between the 6th of September and the 10th of October 2006, TNS Opinion & Social, a consortium created between Taylor Nelson Sofres and EOS Gallup Europe, carried out wave 66 of the "STANDARD" EUROBAROMETER, at the request of the EUROPEAN COMMISSION, Directorate-General Communication, Public Opinion and Media Monitoring.

This STANDARD EUROBAROMETER 66 covers the population of the respective nationalities of the European Union Member States, resident in each of the Member States and aged 15 years and over. The STANDARD EUROBAROMETER 66 has also been conducted in the two acceding countries (Bulgaria and Romania) and in the two candidate countries (Croatia and Turkey), as well as in the Turkish Cypriot Community. In these countries, the survey covers the national population of citizens of the respective nationalities and the population of citizens of all the European Union Member States that are residents in those countries and have a sufficient command of one of the respective national language(s) to answer the questionnaire. The basic sample design applied in all states is a multi-stage, random (probability) one. In each country, a number of sampling points was drawn with probability proportional to population size (for a total coverage of the country) and to population density.

In order to do so, the sampling points were drawn systematically from each of the "administrative regional units", after stratification by individual unit and type of area. They thus represent the whole territory of the countries surveyed according to the EUROSTAT NUTS II (or equivalent) and according to the distribution of the resident population of the respective nationalities in terms of metropolitan, urban and rural areas. In each of the selected sampling points, a starting address was drawn, at random. Further addresses (every Nth address) were selected by standard "random route" procedures, from the initial address. In each household, the respondent was drawn, at random (following the "closest birthday rule"). All interviews were conducted face-to-face in people's homes and in the appropriate national language. As far as the data capture is concerned, CAPI (Computer Assisted Personal Interviewing) was used in those countries where this technique was available.

For each country a comparison between the sample and the universe was carried out. The Universe description was derived from Eurostat population data or from national statistics offices. For all countries surveyed, a national weighting procedure, using marginal and intercellular weighting, was carried out based on this Universe description. In all countries, gender, age, region and size of locality were introduced in the iteration procedure. For international weighting (i.e. EU averages), TNS Opinion & Social applies the official population figures as provided by EUROSTAT or national statistic offices. The total population figures for input in this post-weighting procedure are listed above.

Readers are reminded that survey results are estimations, the accuracy of which, everything being equal, rests upon the sample size and upon the observed percentage. With samples of about 1,000 interviews, the real percentages vary within the following confidence limits:

Observed percentages	10% or 90%	20% or 80%	30% or 70%	40% or 60%	50%
Confidence limits	± 1.9 points	± 2.5 points	± 2.7 points	± 3.0 points	± 3.1 points
